Training Overview

2011

Introduction

Organizations worldwide are in the need of a solution provider that can deliver a full spectrum of training. It is imperative that organizations can craft and execute a strategy, provide tactical leadership and carry out operations effectively and efficiently. The Erinnyes Group provides all facets of training and mentoring to insure our customers are prepared for any situation.

The Erinnyes Group is an international agency that provides turn-key solutions for training, anti-terrorism, special operations, intelligence and threat & vulnerability assessments worldwide. Our mission is to provide a significant risk reduction for defense, government, and commercial organizations. We are an international business founded by combat experienced special operations personnel. Our personnel include U.S. Army Green Berets, Navy SEALs, Air Force Pararescue and other elite members of the special operations community.

The Erinnyes Group provides high quality training in relation to anti-terrorism, law enforcement, combat operations, threat response, and infrastructure protection. We assist defense, government and law enforcement by providing the ability to leverage minimal resources for the maximum impact (force multiplier). Training includes physical and operational security, internal defense planning, exercises, intelligence, border control and responses to weapons of mass destruction.

We structure our approach into operational and command level categories. This is to differentiate requirements between operational field assets and the command elements. Commanders must understand the environment to apply forces in the right location at the right time. Operators must execute effectively and efficiently in accordance with the commanders intent. While we emphasize the critical nature of the chain of command, we instill the ability for individuals to think on their own. This ensures assets have the ability to analyze, adapt and over-come obstacles while maintaining the important fabric of discipline. We create cohesion between all levels of operations to minimize confusion and chaos during any type of situation (Fog of War). Understanding the application of intelligence and technology enhances this cohesion. Our experience has highlighted how frequently technology is implemented as an independent solution however, not as an integrated and multi-level operational tool. By creating tactics, techniques and procedures (TTP) critical intelligence is technologically disseminated to all levels during operations. Everyone has a synchronized set of tools available to ensure mission success while minimizing risk.

Operational Level

The Erinnyes Group focuses on every fundamental aspect of police and military operations, from the individual soldier to the high level commander. To address tactical needs we focus on the foundation of the operation; the soldier. We assist our clients with focused training that applies to each individual ranging from basic training to advanced combat operations. Our tactical training is to establish, fine tune and hone an individual's skills. Our operators come from the U.S. Special Operations community with experience teaching, guiding and mentoring soldiers and organizations to operate independently. Whether the training is conducted for the regular force or for special forces, we focus on the immediate threat a soldier or policemen may face in the line of duty. As we develop the individual we are also developing the team. This includes the important dynamic and discipline between an operator and the team leader. We train the team to work as a cohesive unit and develop team leaders to have the best situational awareness and leadership for mission success. Our curriculum is adapted and well suited whether it is a soldier, policeman, squad or team.

Command Level

As we develop the team, as an asset for commanders to implement, we provide training to the command level emphasizing the transition of strategic plans to tactical operations. It is imperative that commanders maintain situational awareness of the tactical environment, while implementing the strategic initiative and defense policies of government. Throughout a myriad of operations (civil or military) it is important that all resources understand the function of intelligence and technology. We educate all facets of the tactical and strategic command structure on the effective application of Command, Control, Communications, Computers, Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance (C4ISR). This is accomplished through hands on training and exercises to provide command elements the ability to train in realistic scenarios that are similar or more difficult than a real life situation. Additionally, we emphasize the After Action Review (AAR) process to improve performance after each training event or exercise. Thoroughly understanding the Failure Mode, Effects and Critical Analysis (FMECA) will help structure policies, procedures, tactics and techniques for military or civilian forces to effectively conduct operations. This provides the best situational awareness and feedback mechanism for the soldier, upper level command elements and the national command authority. The Erinnyes Group has significant experience in all areas of the operational and leadership process. To fulfill a customer's training requirements, The Erinnyes Group can provide a single or full turn-key solution from candidate selection to defense policy.
